

Step Into My Arms

by Jodie Boyle

You know I love you
Don't you?
Each time you take my hand in yours
When you hold me close
The words spoken from your heart
Any time you say my name...
"Catherine"

I need you
Do I make myself clear?
My day is not complete
Without thinking of you
Sleep eludes me
Unless I close my eyes
Picture your dear face
Imagine you lying beside me
Or sitting...or standing...or being anywhere close by!

I dream of you
Am I a vision you seek?
You are a part of my life
No, you are my life!
The night we met
Even though I could not see you
Your voice grounded me, and gave me strength
I began to fall in love with you
Through our Bond
I'm sensing you loved me, too

Will you say the words I long to hear?
Oh, please do, Vincent!
You and I
Love in the middle Three of the most beautiful words in the world

I like, love, admire, and desire you
All of these ways, equally
You are my dearest friend
Great love
A hero
And, how I long for you...
Endless nights, many daydreams
I adore your embraces, you must know that I do
Yet my thoughts, heart, and body
Imagine what comes after those melting hugs
Ah...but that is another poem!

Perhaps what I mean to tell you is this –

You are in my heart
You make me smile
I crave your touch
You are never far from my thoughts
And, most important and special of all
I love you

Now, I have spoken long enough
Please step into my arms...
