

YOU PURRED FOR ME

by Kassandra

You purred for me.

And when I turned, Astonished,

*To face you
It stopped abruptly.
And you bobbed your head,
Shyly,
Not daring to look at me.*

*I smiled
And you knew the jolt of joy
that little rumbling sound had given me.
So you peeped at me sheepishly -
Through your golden mane.*

And I had no words.

*In the silence.
Suddenly.
It started again.*

*Unthinking,
I stretched out my hand,
Needing to touch the sound.*

*Helplessly I placed my thumb on the base of your throat.
The sound hiccupped,
As my fingertips tingled with the vibrations.*

*And your lips crept back,
Two tiny white points just showed as you smiled.*

*The moment cascaded with glittering possibilities, And etched itself eternally on my heart.
Oh, Vincent I wish I could purr.*