

The souls of lovers at Pointe du Raz

(A 100 word tidbit)

by Ulrike

Hi Chandler, little brother,

The region of Brittany is like any area - full of mysticism and countless local fairy tales. So maybe, I can contribute to some new, unknown stories and tales for Halloween. I still remember the imagination and magic spells in those stories we loved and believed.

According to one legend here, the souls of lovers who committed suicide because they were not allowed to marry, meet on All Souls' Day on the sandy beach of Baie des Trépassés.

The tide unites them and the low tide separates them again. Just like life.

Lots of love

Devin

END