

30th Anniversary Special Interview

Allison Writer

1) When did you first become aware that B&B had a fandom?

If memory serves, I found CABB and BBTV after the series ended. Finding those links led to others...and others...and others...

2) Why did you decide to write fanfic?

Seeing the stories on Tunnel Tales and other sites made me wonder what I could come up with. So on that note decided to give it a try.

3) What character(s) do you enjoy writing about the most?

Vincent and Catherine are the logical choices. Haven't had an idea in the beginning with anyone else, but now, who knows what my muse will concoct.

4) Do you prefer long stories or short ones?

Have read and enjoyed both. Have written both. Just depends on where story will take me at that moment.

5) Do you feel you have more stories in you yet to write?

There are ALWAYS more stories, the idea can be easy or difficult to work with. Some ideas have been written over and over and some end up entirely new.

6) What aspect of the B&B fantasy world intrigues you most?

I guess the idea of an Utopian society living in peace and harmony.

7) Have you written other fiction, or any non-fiction?

Never attempted anything else.

8) What person do you prefer to write in (i.e. first, second, third)?

Not sure how to answer this. I don't know.

9) What do you wish they had explored (or explored more) in the series?

Maybe more back stories on the early years of the tunnels, how many of the characters joined, Catherine's influences growing up and college years.

10) What aspect of the series do you like least?

Like many classic fans I wish they had continued with Catherine's character. I also liked Vincent's development in the third season. More confident and sure of himself. He found he could love and be loved as a man. I don't think he would have found love with Diana, as with Catherine. Diana would have accepted eventually that Vincent would never love another.
